Passage : The Quiet Helper

Ayaan was a quiet boy who rarely spoke in class. While others rushed to be noticed, he preferred observing people and situations carefully. One afternoon, during the lunch break, Ayaan noticed a new student standing alone near the classroom door, looking confused and worried.

Instead of ignoring the child, Ayaan walked up to him and asked if he needed help. The new student explained that he could not find the water dispenser and was afraid to ask anyone. Ayaan smiled, took him to the dispenser, and then showed him the playground and the library.

By the end of the day, the new student looked relaxed and happy. Though no teacher praised Ayaan and no one clapped for him, Ayaan felt satisfied. He understood that kindness does not always need an audience; sometimes, it only needs a willing heart.

31. Why did Ayaan often remain quiet in class?
- (A) He was afraid of speaking (B) He liked observing people carefully
(C) He disliked his classmates (D) He did not understand lessons
32. Why was the new student worried?
- (A) He was hungry (B) He had lost his bag
(C) He could not find the water dispenser (D) He was late for class
33. What did Ayaan do after helping the new student?
- (A) He left him alone (B) He informed the teacher
(C) He showed him important places in school (D) He returned to class silently
34. What does the phrase "kindness does not always need an audience" mean?
- (A) Kindness should be shown loudly (B) Kindness is meant for teachers
(C) Kindness does not need praise (D) Kindness is difficult

35. Which quality of Ayaan is highlighted most in the passage?

(A) Confidence

(B) Intelligence

(C) Kindness

(D) Strictness
